

Motivational Leadership: Getting Results without Authority

In today's world, teenagers are expected to get results by molding a group into a driving force, many times without any real authority over most of the members. They need new skills to be effective in this environment - skills like winning trust, building credibility, and influencing others to agree with their point of view.

These are exactly the types of abilities they will acquire with Motivational Leadership: Getting Results without Authority. They will learn to communicate up, down, and across all peer levels to build consensus; negotiate compromises that work for everyone; and resolve group conflicts before they derail a project.

In addition, this leadership training seminar provides a set of proprietary exercises that will show participants how to create working alliances and make classmates enjoy doing what they need them to do.

Now, by utilizing this seminar teenagers can take an important step toward joining the ranks of other successful leaders.

What we will cover

- ◆ Understanding authority
- ◆ Building the confidence to lead
- ◆ Motivational leadership
- ◆ Planning and accountability
- ◆ Overcoming barriers and roadblocks
- ◆ Moving forward successfully

Register today for:

Motivational Leadership: Getting Results without Authority.

Participants learn how to:

- Understand the five proven ways to successfully influence others
- Project a positive, confident image
- Learn and acquire the behaviors that permit effective leadership
- Lead others even when you don't have direct authority
- Appreciate the power of being a good listener
- Create effective partnerships with your peers
- Recognize and overcome the barriers that may stand in the way of your taking a leadership role

Who should attend

This seminar is ideal for teenagers who needs to motivate, influence or to encourage others to buy into an idea or course of action.

Investment: $398

Steve VerBurg
Dale Carnegie of Orange County
1805 East Dyer Road, Suite 109
Santa Ana, CA 92705
949-833-3253

www.oc.dalecarnegie.com